The Malco slogan, “Better ideas for the real world,” is a call to action that quickly summarizes our company’s response to ever-changing workplace needs, and workforce demographics, of the HVAC industry. We are a company of true innovation and continuous improvement. Our “better ideas” formal research and development process, and award-winning product design team, are validated by a knowledgeable network of established manufacturers’ representatives, broad-based non-exclusive distribution and a vast population of HVAC technicians and educators. The current Malco line-up of powerful ergonomic hand tool designs, power-assisted tools, portable fabrication equipment, fasteners and fastening systems dominate the HVAC landscape. From regional emergence of forced-air heating to the present-day high efficiency climate control systems spanning the globe, Malco has been developing job-site tools and accessories that improve productivity and promote the health and safety of hands-on pros who depend on them. An objective unchanged for over 60-years.
